SALE OF UMBRELLA RIBS.

DELIVERY THAT WAS REFUSED.

Before the Puisne Judge in the Summary Court this morning the hearing was resumed of the action brought by Harry Wicking and Co. against the Lee Hing firm. The claim was for $1,000 damages for alleged breach of contract by defendants in not accepting and failure to pay for seventeen cases of umbrella "ribs and handles sold by plaintiffs to them ou August 12, 1911.

Mr. Willson appeared for plaintiffs, and Mr. R. C. Faithfull defended. .

The action was adjourned at the previous hearing for evidence to be given as to the commercial meaning of the words "if possible" which appeared in the contract for the sale and purchase of the goods." Mr. John Owen Hughes, a member o the plaintiff firm, was called by Mr. Willson. He said the words "if possible" were usually inserted in contracts - they certainly were in his firms contracts. They were necessary more particularly in this case because the order was given sometime in August and the price then offered was not accepted by the manufactures. The dates of delivery were not altered in the new contract, and it often happened that manufacturers found it impossible to obtain shipment of goods at the time. The delivery of the goods within any stipulated time was not guaranteed. The ribs were made in Austria and the han les in Germany and there was some question of their not fitting each other; this, was no concern of his as no stipulation was made, but an allowance of six per cent, was unde on account of this. purely as an act of grace.

Cross-examined : He had never seen a contract of another Hongkong firm containing the words "if possi le," as he did not nes other huropean firms' contracts, but he had heard of them. He was not in Hongkong in November 1911 when the contract was made, and his knowledge had been obtained from the books of the

Mr. Faithfull Then you really know nothing about it, because your books are not put ia as evidence:

The witness in reply to further questions said the document produced, on which he-was suing, was made in November' and was copied from the one made in August, the only difference being that in the latter document the price was higher. This alteration was confirmed by defendants. The words "if possible" were put is to the November Contract ...

His Lordship, examining the contracts, said the November one, containing the words "if pussible" was chopped by the defendant firm and signed by plaintiffs." His Lordship reserved judgment till

MR. BALFOUR ON THE SM.

A SUMMARY OF THE LECTURES AND AN APPEAL.

GLISGOW, Feb. 6.

To-day's lecture was partly a summary and partly an appeal to the audience. Mr. Balfour began by saying must his object had been to show that the values of our beliefs are dependent upon a. Theistic setting. Beliefs, he insisted, [could be and must be considered natural products, finide their values as intuital products must depend upon their origin. We must find in their pedigree some source higher than our poor efforts at reason, not a source lower and more contemptible. It was no answer to say hat certain fundamental truths make the world, and the world is what it is because of fundamental truths, for he had shown that among the unproved and unprovable assumptions which are required to justify common sense and scientific knowledge, there are assumptions neither necessary nor universal nor inevitable. yet assumed through the whole course of knowledge. He had also shown that there are probabilities, tendencies to believe, organizing inclinations, which can be seen in the history of science.

NATURAL SELECTION AND RELIGION. Having thus dealt with a possible objection from the point of view of critical idealism. Mr. Balfour summarized his argument that natural selection is inenpuble of accounting directly for any of the great values he had dealt with. He was aware of the dontroversies raging among biologists about natural selection; but he had chosen it because it is the only substitute that we know of for what is commonly called disign. Selection does imitate design up to a certain point, but even if it could, as jit certainly cannot, be proved that the higher values of testheties, of ethics, and of thought have a survival value, it would not help us to maintain these values. But in fact the higher a value the further it is removed from the primitive consequences for which selection is responsible.

.His own argument about the necessity of a Theistie setting for our policis was not attached to any great metaphysical system of thought, nor to any intuitive sense of religious values." He did not under-estimate the direct argument from religious beliefs which rests religious value on religion itself. But religious values were for him the conclusion, not the premisses, of his argument, and I could only rest the value of religion upon other values which are universally acknowledged. He did not appeal those who are catisfied with any of the great constructive metaphysical systems but he urged the necessity for a philosophy of science and of common sense.

THE DIFFORD LECTURER'S PUBLIC. Mr. Ballour said he thought that difford lecturer should speak to the general public; but to what public? Fortunately, he remarked, there are many to whom God is as immediate as bertain as anything of which they

> Is the mon who has bloodreal rich red blood and plenty of it-in his body WATERBURY'S METABOLITED CODDIVERICIL COMPOUND have immediate experience-to whom the existence of God is a daily and hourly certainly. They were above his argument and to them it would be superfluous. There are others immersed in the daily task, in the toil that cannot be put off, who have no interest in speculative questions, and who are satisfied to acquiesce. in the common beliefs of science and in the religious beliefs of those among whom they live. On them depends the work of the world, and he did not think it was every man's duty to acquaint himself with all the arguments on all important issues. "God," he said, "has not so made the world that its ordinary business is to be carried on by dialectic." Turning to the classes of men who are interested in such inquiries, Mr. Belfour contrasted the shallow and infinitely tiresome sceptics who base an intellectual reputation upon a few materialistic tags with the great doubters from whose ranks have come pillars of orthodoxy, leaders of hereside, framers of systems of speculation, makers of new modes of thought and of new pictures of the universe. Be tween these two extremes there are many educated persons greatly perplexed about the problems which science, philosophy, and criticism were forcing upon them. Such thinkers would agree with him that a world without God is a world in which diminished, but they might argue their intellectual integrity required them to make the sacrifice. He hoped that his line of argument might suggest to these men some valuable forms of consolation. Their attitude was honourable, but it was mistaken, for it was based upon an entirely false contrast between intellectual and other values. Let them not be misled by the pernicious fallacy morality; it is an essential condition of all intellectual values, including those of the belief of reience. BELLEF IN GOD. The real moral of his lectures is, he concluded, that a belief in Theism is not an accidental ornamen which can b added or not added to the house in which you live. It cannot be superadded or not superadded to other beliefs, those other beliefs remaining unaffected and unchanged. A Theistic bolief is essential on whatever values we cast our eyes: and for the retention of these values alike in beauty, in morality, and in science there is, if we want to retain these values undiminished, but one setting. That setting is a belief in God. Mr. Ballour's second series of Gifford loctures will probably bo delivered in that speculative difficulties only begin

when we go into supersensible regions

under the guidance of hair-plitting meta-physicians. The real speculative difficulties touch our daily life, the very nature of the things on which our daily life depends. Let them remember, too that the Theistic sessing is not required merely for the values of religion and

An announcement in the "Gazette informs us that the King has granted permission to Mr. John Patrick Donovan to wear the Insignia of the Fifth Claus of the Order of the Excellent Crop, which has been conferred on him by the Prosident of the Republic of China. It not quite clear, the "Observer" notes whether the Order is agricultural or intended to mark exceptional umong barbers.

THE RESIGNATION OF LORD GLADSTONE

Lord Gladstone's resignation of the office of Governor-General of South Africa is officially announced as already wired us by Router. Mr. Hercourt, in making. was due entirely to domestic reasons i.o., the state of Lady Gladetone's health. It will take effect in June next. Mr Sydney Buxton, who has been for some time President of the Board of Trade, is to receive a poerage and to succeed Lord Gladstone in South Africa. He will be succeeded at the Board of Trade by 284 Mr. John Burns, who has with considerable credit hold the office of President of the Local Government Board since the Liberals came into power December, 1905. The latter will. followed at the Local Government Board by Mr. Herbert Samuel, who has shown much painstaking ability as Postmaster-General. Then Mr. Charles Hobbouse 862 the new Postmaster-General; and Mr. C. F. G. Masterman is to be Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, in succession to Mr. Hobbouse, with a seat in Cabinet, whilst he will continue to act of Angle-Indian life, dealing with the as Chairman of the Insurance Joint mittee. Judged by the accepted canons of political service, they have all of them earned their promotion. There will be by-elections in Poplar, where a successor to Mr. Buxton has to be found, and South-West Bethnal Green, where Masterman has to seek re-election.

Moore Mothuen have just published volume on " Modern Mexico" by Mr. R. J. the announcement, said the resignation MacHugh. The book contains a full discamion of the origin and development of the political problems which disturb Mexico at the present time, and is prefaced by a brief historical sketch and a description of Mexico and its people, their habits, customs and character, together with much valuable information on the commerce industries, resources, railways and communications of the country. One of the great company of Elizabethan seamen is the here of Mr. H. C. Falley's new novel "The Sea Captain." Captain Rymingtowne is presented as no crusader but something of a marchant, something of an adventurer, and a little of a pirate. Agnes and Egerton Castle's new novel The Goldon Barrier." The main theme of this romance is the situation created by the marriage of a comparatively poor man to a wealthy hoiress. Mrs. Alice Perriu's new novel "The Jappy Hunting Ground " It's lively story

"DIRECTORY AND CHRONICLE.

REVIEWS.

All works of reference are more or less useful, but very few of them deserve to be considered as being indispensable. In the latter entegory, however, we must unike an exception-in the case of the Directory and Chronicle for China, Japan, Straits Settlements, Indo-China Philippines, etc.;" for it is unquestionably indispensable to all interested in the Far East, and we are of opinion that the office, shop, any kind of premises er residence there that is without this excollent work of reference is without a book that to most people would proveand does prove-itself to be of the utmost

This year's edition has just been published, and we welcome its bulky appearauco in its familiar read cloth binding as we should welcome has old friend. As usual, the "Directory" is replete with useful and thoroughly reliable information regarding the various countries referred to, and there are few facts regarding the Treaty Porty, Hongkong, the Straits Setale. ments and other places that form important parts of the Far East that are not given in its clearly printed and admirarranged pages. Briefly, th Directory" is a comprehensive and dinirable work of reference to all inte ested in the Far East. It may be obtained from Messrs, Kelly and Walsh brokseliers or from the publishers, tir-' Hongkong Daily Press " Office, De-

Russis and Mongolia.

Vorux Road, Hongkong.

Sir Claude Macdenald, at one time British Minister at Peking, writes notable preface to the book entitled " With the Russians in Mongolia," which has just been written by Mr. H. G. C Perry-Ayscough (of the Chinese Custom Service) and Captain Otter-Barry (John Lane, publisher).

Sir Claude considers that Russia aiming at the creation of a sphere special interest, which in course of time would enable her to say "hands off to everybody else, and he continues:-

"'It would therefore seem that the times has arrived for Great Britain t spread herself " over Tibet in something of the same way that Russia doing over Mongolia. One other reminiscence of this great uprising in Peking of 1900 which has it parallel in the doings of the present day Many months before law and order had been restored out of chaos, and at time, the early autumn of 1900, who the various quarters of the Tartar and Chinese cities, which go to make up the espital of China, were held by stron; detachments of the troops of the great Powers, it became known that peremptory orders had come from Petersburg to the effect that all Russian troops were to be instantly withdrawn. Notwithstanding the local protests of the officers commanding the other detachments, and indeed of the Russian officers themselves who had THE BANK C. CIRCULAR LETTERS | acquired very comfortable quarters within the walls of the Summer Palace, the troops of the Tsar, numbering many thousands, turned their backs on the grey walls of Peking and marched away; t Manchuria estensibly to quell certain disturbances which had taken place there, and incidentally to consolidate Russia' already strong position and sphere of in fluence in that province, the first stone of which had been laid by the lease taken of Port Arthur in 1898. Events and disturbances in Peking arraiding and accompanying the recent revolution in China, and the overthrow of the Manchu dynasty; caused the roops of the great Powers to assemble guin in her capital, and Russian solliers once more formed part of the international and very effective body of police which guarded foreign interests, and relipsal to maintain order in Peking and in meighbourhood,

Within the last few days news has come that peremptory orders have been received from Petersburg instructing the Russian troops to leave Peking forthwith these orders have come as a great surprise, for the necessity of an international force, in and around the conital at the present moment is practically as great

But this time these troops will not march to Manchuria, but to Mongolia, there to assist in consolidating and strengthening the position Russin has taken up in the latter province. What will happen in the future it is not easy to say, the prophets of 1900 were all hopelessly wrong as to the future of Manchurin, hut a perusal of the pages which follow will give the reader food for much thought and material wherewith to form an opinion. It is possible that a strong SINGAPORE, STRAITS, &c. :- KILLY reaction may take place, amongst, the ongola against their new masters, bu it is more than likely that this reaction will come too late."

Neuralgia, Nervous Breakdown—

NURSE HALL, c/o Mrs. Bassett, Commercial Place, Landport, Portsmouth, Eng., writes:-"I was suffering from nervous breakdown with Internal Neuralgia, when I began a course of Phosferine. After having taken it for three or four months, I felt better than I had done for. two years previously, and consider it the best tonic I have ever tried. As a remedy for all nervous disorders I think there is nothing to equal Phosferine, especially as I was given up by more than one doctor previous to taking Phosferine, and can now say I am perfectly well and strong, and have taken nothing else."

No other medicine has received such absolute proof of its extraordinary properties in restoring Shattered Constitutions, and in giving back to the prematurely aged New Life and Energy.

The case came before the courts in the form of an action to establish the will by Mr. T. G. Studdert, of County Clare, and Mr. William Ropner, against the lieutement's brother, Mr. Charles Arthur of County Clare. The defence was that the will was not duly executed.

After evidence that the will was entirely in the lieutenant's handwriting, and the testimony of we two witnesses of the will, counsel for the defendant said he did not wish to contest the matter

Mr. Justice Kenny said it was plain that the governing wish in Licentenant Mi Cano Arthur's mind was to provide for this Helens is well-known that there is every probability that the local Government in Capton will succumb to the law of necessity or, at least, to what many seem to regard as such a law, and conce more license gambling throughout Canton and the other big cities of the delta. The leaders of Young China, recognising the evils of gambling, and taking their cue from the attitude of most Western Governments, attacked the evil and tried to suppress it. That the task was tremendous everybody recognised, and that only partial success would follow the efforts made most people recognised. Again and again, notwithstanding the laws promulgated against it, during men started booths and arranged tables in out-of the way places. These were pulled down and in some cases burnt; but it was thought impolitic to punish in any other way, or, at least, to any extent those who were daring enough to set the new laws at defiance. MILITANCY DEFENDED.

MCPHERSON ON "MAN-MADE LAWS."

Mrs. J. L. McPherson at the Y.M.C.A. Debating Society last night, made a trenchant defence of suffragettism and to the root of women's grievances. Men, it. were in the position of complete buthority over women and had shown signs of selfish-Bene olent Society acknowledges the reness. Women's main dissatisfaction was coupt from Mrs. Tindale of $26.83, being the way the Government had handled legislation effecting children. The life work of a woman was the care of children, they were experts on that subject. The average man knew nothing of the needs a little child and yet they had attempted to deal by legislation with some of the evils as they affected the children without the advice of expera The depth under the direction of the Singapore ignorance on the nature of children displayed by those members of Parliamen was nothing but natural.

> One of the reasons for militancy was the light sentences in offerces against the persons of women and little children contrasted with the heavy sentences for theft. The lightness of the sentence was a direct encouragement to that kind of crime. The women did not believe that any one could be made moral by law but they did believe that the penalties could be made | this eventuality. heavier. "There is only one possible explanation," Mrs. McPherson emphasized, and that is sex prejudice, but I have no doubt if women had the making of all laws sex prejudice would operate in the opposite

It must not be inferred, said Mr. Asquith. that any proposal to which he would alluded had either been submitted or rejected in the course of those conversations. Mr. Bonar Law and Sir Edward Carson, however, would agree that the conversations, although they had not resulted even in an approach to an Agreement, yet made those participating realise more fully, and perhaps more sympathetically, the difficulties that had to be encountered by those honestly desiring a settlement. They were difficulties not imaginary but substantial and indeed inherent in the conditions of an unexampled situation.

The Uister Difficulty.

By far the most serious of the difficulties was the question of Ulster. The Government had tried bonestly and seriously to meet that difficulty by three different roads. There was the expedient which, he confessed, commended itself much to his judgment, called " Home Rule within Home Rule." Personally, he had spent a great deal of time and labour in trying to devise a settlement on these lines; and it was the essence of his proposal of what was called Home Rule within Home Rule" that as regards administration Ulster should, until the Imperial Parliament had otherwise decided, be entirely exempt from the Executive Administrative authority of the Irish Parliament in Dublin. It was not such a difficult problem as it seemed, as the Police, Land and everything connected with land purchase were under a Bill as it stood for reserved services, and did not pass within the province of the Irish executive. As regards what was left, continued Mr. Asquith, namely education and local government, it seemed to him that these might very well be in the excluded aren to be administered by some Local Authority: while as regards the factory and workshops administration, that would remain as at present under the Secretary of State at Whitehall. His able in the Government of Ireland proposal regarding legislation was, though it met with little support from ing for them from the first the best any quarter, that Ulster should rechance of ultimate success. (Hear, turn, like the rest of Ireland, representatives to both the Upper and It Lower Houses of the Irish Legislature, but that when any law passed by these Houses respecting Ulster to which a majority of Ulster's representatives were opposed, it should not come into force until it had received the sanction of the Imperial Parliament.

A Serious Drawback.

That, said Mr. Asquith, was there was in Ireland, as a whole, at going a much longer way than many event were such as to warrant in pletely meeting the question of posall quarters not indeed surrender of sible administrative oppression; and cerned. (Laughter.)

The second road was that the Reiterates Views Expressed at Ladybank. Whole of Ireland should, in the first instance, be included, both for legis-It was to meet that situation that lative and executive purposes, in the

The Policy of Exclusion,

They then came to the practical question as to how faverelusion could be adopted without violating principles on either side. They had come to the conclusion that the only practical way was to allow the Uister Counties themselves to determine whether they desired to be excluded. His plan was that any county in the ·Province of Ulster was to be excluded for a certain period if, on a poll being taken of Parlianientary electors, of the County before the Bill came into operation, a bare majority of votes favoured exclusion. The said poll would be taken in the County if a requisition presented and signed by one-tenth of the electors was within three years the date of the passing of the Bill. Persons entitled to vote those entitled to vote Parliamentary elections. Questions could be put-" Are you in favour of the exclusion of the County from the Government of Ireland Act 1914 for a period of years or are you against such exclusion." The poll would be taken by ballot similar to Parliamentary elections, and if the poll resulted in favour of exclusion much consideration, thought the Trish Legislature in Dublin.
